It J. WILL CLARKE, Agent,

The barbecue given Saturday to raise money to buy rifles for the cadets of the Training School was an immense success, there being four thousand people present. Speeches of a non-political character were made by Congressman E. E. Settle, of Owen, G. R. Keller, of Carlisle, Claude M. Thomas, of Paris, and Col. Wm. Moore, of Harrison. The committee will clear $400 which will be ample to purchase the equipment of guns. There was plenty to eat for everybody, and all of the booths and privileges made money. The crowd was probably the largest ever seen in Millersburg, and it was very orderly, not an intoxicated man being seen or an arrest being made. Millersburg people gained fresh laurels as entertainers, everybody being well pleased with the day's entertainment.

NEW REGIMENTS.

No Delay Will Be Allowed in Enlisting and Equipping Them.

The New Regiments Will Increase the Strength of the Army to 95,045 Men, Being Only 4,893 Short of Authorized Number.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—“The policy of the war department” said Secretary Root Thursday “is to furnish Gen. Otis with all the troops and supplies that he can use and which are necessary to wind up the insurrection in the Philippines in shortest possible time.”

The secretary was speaking of the 10 regiments which were called out Thursday by order of the president. He said that no delay would be allowed in enlisting, equipping and supplying the new regiments, nor in transporting them as well as the other regiments already organized to the Philippines as soon as they were needed for active operations. If the present number of transports are insufficient more will be procured.

The men already enlisted for the Philippine service will be sent at once and the new regiments will be forwarded as fast as they are organized and needed. While there has been some suggestion that the new regiments will be used as a reserve force, it may be stated positively that these regiments as well as more if they can be used will be sent to reinforce Gen. Otis.

Secretary Root sent a copy of the order of Thursday to the various departments of the army, and they at once began preparations for supplying the new organizations.

Within half an hour the ordnance bureau had sent orders to the different arsenals directing that complete outfits of arms and ordnance supplies for each regiment be sent to rendezvous where they are to be organized. The quartermaster's department gave orders for supplying tents, clothing and other equipments furnished by that department, while the commissary department ordered a sufficient supply of rations to be on hand to feed the troops as fast as they arrive. The medical department was also directed to see that supplies were sent. The regiments will be recruited with the same care exercised in enlisting the first ten regiments.

The districts which were not very thoroughly covered in recruiting for the first regiments will be visited by the officers in the new organizations. It is the intention of the department to have the regiments give more attention to firing than any other feature of the drill. The men will be armed as are the regular infantry regiments, with the magazine army rifle.

The selection of the majors and company officers for the regiments is now occupying the attention of the secretary and the men are being chosen from among the volunteers who were called out in the Spanish war. The officers will be distributed as equitably as possible among the different states, but the efficiency and records of the men will govern to a great extent in their selection.

It appears from Thursday's orders that the ten new regiments are to be mainly recruited in New England and the middle and central western states. Kansas and Pennsylvania have apparently been selected as the best field for recruits. It is said that no special effort is to be made to secure recruits in the southern states.

Thursday's action will add 13,090 men to the enlisted strength of the army and increases the total strength of the army to 95,045 men, being only 4,893 short of the total authorized volunteer establishment of 35,000. It is stated at the department that the number of volunteers already called into service is regarded as amply sufficient to meet all possible needs of the army, and that there is no possibility that the remaining 4,893 volunteers will be called for.

BABE WAS UNHURT.

“The Hogs Are Eating My Child” Cried Mrs. Fred Lawyer, Near Washington, Ind., and Dropped Dead.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Fred Lawyer, who resides six miles from here, left her two and three-year-old children at home alone Thursday morning, while she visited a neighbor. Suddenly she heard the cries of a child.

“The hogs are eating my baby,” she cried, as she sprang to her feet, and started on a run toward her home. Mrs. Lawyer had gone but a short distance when she fell to the ground unconscious, and in 20 minutes died. Heart disease was brought on by fright, the doctors say.

The child whose cries had caused its mother's death was merely crying because angry at its little brother.

THE RACE PROBLEM.

Bishop L. H. Holsey, of Texas, Has Scheme to Colonize Them and Erect Negro States

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—At the meeting of the colored men's convention Friday, Bishop L. H. Holsey, of Texas, proposed to the members an entirely new scheme for the solution of the race problem. His idea is to have the Negroes build up a separate government of their own, but instead of deporting them to Africa, as advocated by Bishop Turner, of Georgia, he would have this mecca of the colored man located within the United States.

Bishop Holsey explains his proposal as follows:

There is but one way to solve this problem and that is separation and segregation. That is, the Negro race must occupy a state or states and hold territory to themselves. To make this movement effective 1,500,000 voters should sign a petition to congress to set apart a sufficient amount of the public domain with proper legislative restrictions by which a state or states may be erected which will be distinctly Negro states, having all the rights, powers, privileges, functions and political facilities given other states in the union.

If this can be accomplished the black man would derive all the benefits and advantages for development that make a people intelligent, thoughtful and noble.

The removal of the Negro to such a state or states would settle the great problem as far as the Negro is concerned, and would relieve the south of many a side issue in the social and political world.

When asked what portion of the United States had been selected by the advocates of the scheme, Bishop Holsey replied: “Oklahoma and New Mexico have been mention, but we have not got so far with the project that we feel in a position to select any particular territory.”

ON CONDITION.

M. Guerin Will Surrender on His Own Conditions and Refuses to Accept Those Proposed by Gen. Jacquey.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—M. Guerin decided Friday night to energetically maintain his own propositions and refused to accept those proposed by Gen. Jacquey.

M. Guerin's decision not to surrender was delivered after a deputation of the national defense group had waited on him and informed him of the contents of the semi-official note.

Gen. Jacquey and M. Firmin Faure, revisionist and anti-Semitic, a deputy from Oran, Algeria, had numerous interviews during the day with members of the chamber of deputies and also with Premier Waldeck-Rousseau, whereupon Gen. Jacquey submitted his proposition for surrender.

It is now said M. Lasies, deputy from the Condon district of the Geers, has decided to discontinue further negotiations with M. Guerin. Gen. Jacquey, who is a republican member of the chamber of deputies, is also disengaged and has left Paris.

A semi-official note issued Friday night says:

“Having consideration for humanity above all other things, the government from the beginning discarded the idea of storming M. Guerin's house or the seizure of the accused by mere force. Measures for preventing M. Guerin from communicating with the outside world, as well as preventing or dispersing all assemblies, will be maintained, however, as long as possible.”

PARIS, Aug. 19.—A strict blockade has been established in the Rue De Chabrol and the authorities Saturday morning began a regular siege of the house in which M. Guerin and his anti-Semitic colleagues have entrenched themselves.

HORRIBLE MURDER.

Boy Swung Up From a Barn Rafter at Murray City—Two Men Arrested and Held on suspicion.

MURRAY CITY, O., Aug. 19.—George Simko, 14, was found dead in a barn by his sister Friday. Saloonist John Namet, his stepfather, sent him out to feed the horses.

The young man being at the barn so long, his sister went out to see what was wrong, finding him dead in the haymow. Foul play was suspected. Search was made and a rope was found, which showed that the boy had been hanged and cut down.

At the coroner's inquest it was found that the boy's neck was broken. Marks around the neck also show prints of the rope. Two men were seen at the barn just before the boy was found.

Two arrests have been made, Rube and Mohlon Lanning, from New Pittsburg, O. They were seen to go through the saloon toward the barn. Marshal Wm. Channell, a Surto City deputy, made the arrests.

Business Portion Destroyed.

BOISE, Ida., Aug. 19.—The town of Placerville, in Boise county, was wiped out by fire. The business portion of the place was destroyed and most of the residences. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

First Ten Regiments Full.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The number of enlisted men Thursday was 309, making a total of 14,429. Even with the discharges that have been made there are a sufficient number to fill the first ten regiments.

RIOTS IN PARIS.

Serious Disturbances Occurred Recalling Some Aspects of the Commune.

Church of St. Joseph Almost Completely Gutted and Valuable Paintings Destroyed—Many Were Hurt Fighting the Police.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Paris was Sunday the scene of most serious disturbances, recalling some aspects of the commune. In response to an appeal of the journals Le Peuple and La Petite Republique, groups of anarchists and socialists gathered about 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions and there seemed no danger of disorders.

Sebastian Faure and Faberot, well known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders. Faure, standing on the pedestal of the statue which rises in the center of the Place de la Republique, addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests. The crowd at this point dispersed, but a column of demonstrators, headed by Faure and Henri D'Or, made for the Place de la Nation.

The police broke through the column and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired and M. Goulier, commissary of police, was twice stabbed with a knife.

This threw the police into momentary confusion. The mob reassembled and ran toward the Place de la Nation. In the meantime the anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way.

Suddenly, either at the word of command or in obeisance to impulse, the column made a loop and curved toward the Church of St. Ambroise, where the rioters smashed the windows.

Proceeding thence toward the Faubourg Du Temple, at the corner of the Rue Darboy and the Rue St. Maur-Popincourt, they formed up into a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with long knives stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan, seeing the mob hastily closed the outer gates, but these were soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

According to the first account the wild horde burst into the church which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars and statues were hurled to the floor, and smashed; pictures were rent, candlesticks, ornaments and hosts from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles, and the figure of the Saviour was fractured in several places.

Then, while rancorous voices sang the “Carmagnole” the chairs were carried outside, piled up and set on fire in the center of the square fronting the church.

When this stage was reached the crucifix was pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly the cry was raised that the statue of the Virgin had been forgotten, and the crowd returned and tore this down also.

Meanwhile the sacristan, who had been captured by the anarchists, escaped and called the police and republican guards, who promptly arrived with many constables. They were compelled to fall back in order to form up into line of defense, as the anarchists attacked them fearfully with knives.

At length the officers began to gain the mastery. A score of anarchists took refuge in an adjacent house. Others entrenched themselves in the belfry and fiercely defended themselves by showering missiles on the republican guards, but finally these were dislodged.

Twenty anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

When the police entered the church the anarchists had just set fire to the pulpit. The interior of the edifice was a complete wreck. Several valuable old pictures that can never be replaced were ruined.

About 10 o'clock disorders occurred on the Boulevard de Magenta. Boulevard de Strasbourg. Several revolver shots were fired, but nobody was injured.

Up to 1 o'clock Monday morning 380 persons have been reported injured, including several policemen. No one as far as known was injured by firearms. Nearly all were hurt by being crushed or trodden under foot. A body of rioters who had taken refuge in the court yard of Gare de l'Est was expelled by the police, who made 25 arrests. Quiet has now been restored.

Reed's Resignation.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 21.—Reed's resignation will be sent to the governor of Maine this week to take effect September 4. The special election to elect a successor to Mr. Reed in this district will be held about the middle of October.

Hensley Won Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—After a close fight Dr. J. L. Hensley received the endorsement of the republican central committee for representative for the Marion-Morrow district.

BACILLUS ICTEROIDES.

The Commission Appointed by the President to Investigate Cause of Yellow Fever Reports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The report of the commission appointed by the president in 1897 from the marine hospital service staff to investigate the nature of yellow fever was Friday made public by Surgeon General Wyman. The commission was composed of Surgeon Eugene Wasdin and Past Assistant Surgeon Geddings, both yellow fever experts.

The conclusions of the commission are summarized as follows:

First, That the micro organism discovered by Prof. Giuseppe Sanarelli, of the university of Bologna, Italy, and by him named “Bacillus icteroides,” is the cause of yellow fever.

Second, That yellow fever is naturally infectious to certain animals, the degree varying with the species; that in some rodents local infection is very quickly followed by blood infection; and that, while in dogs and rabbits there is no evidence of this subsequent invasion of the blood, monkeys react to the infection the same as man.

Third, That infection takes place by way of the respiratory tract, the primary colonization in the blood or of the secondary infection” or a secondary colonization of this organism in the blood of the patient. This secondary infection may be complicated by the instantaneous passage of other organisms into the blood, or this complication may arise during the last hours of life.

Fifth, That there is no evidence to support the theory advanced by Prof. Sanarelli that this disease is primarily a septicæmia, inasmuch as cases do occur in which the bacillus icteroides can not be found in the blood or organs in which it might be deposited therefrom.

Sixth, That there exists no causal relationship between the bacillus “X,” of Sternberg, and this highly infectious disease, and that the bacillus “X” is frequently found in the intestinal contents or normal animals and of man, as well as in the urine and the bronchial section.

Seventh, That so far as your commission is aware, the bacillus icteroides has never been found in any body other than one infected with yellow fever, and that whatever may be the cultural similarities between this and other micro-organisms, it is characterized by a specificity which is distinctive.

Eighth, That the bacillus icteroides is very susceptible to the influences injurious to bacterial life; and that its ready control by the processes of disinfection, chemical and mechanical, is assured.

Ninth, That the bacillus icteroides produces in vitro as well as in viva, a toxin of the most marked potency, and that, from our present knowledge, there exists a reasonable possibility for the ultimate production of an anti-serum more potent than that of Prof. Sanarelli.

Tenth, That the bacillus icteroides produces in vitro as well as in viva, a toxin of the most marked potency, and that, from our present knowledge, there exists a reasonable possibility for the ultimate production of an anti-serum more potent than that of Prof. Sanarelli.

PATROLLING THE COAST.

The Santo Domingo Government Apprehensive of the Arrival of Jiminez, the Leader of the Revolution.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 19.—Advices from Santo Domingo say the government there is growing desperately apprehensive of the arrival of Jiminez, leader of the revolution, who is momentarily expected. His arrival, it was added, will completely turn popular opinion, which has been partly undecided. Consequently the chief object of the government is to intercept Jiminez, and a number of armed vessels are patrolling the coast with orders to search every strange vessel and capture Jiminez under any flag, armed or not.

SANTO DOMINGO DE CUBA, Aug. 19.—The Dominican agents are rapidly recruiting expeditions in this part of the island, particularly on the north coast.

Orders were received from Havana Friday to hold the men recently captured at Baracoa pending an investigation.

All trading schooners are closely watched. Thursday the tug Adonis was armed and sent to Guantanomo to patrol the coast. It is certain that several expeditions have been able to get away without any interference, but Gen. Leonard Wood, the military governor, is determined to do all in his power to enforce neutrality.

Prices of Meats Raised.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Prices for all meats for the consumers were raised from two to three cents per pound at a mass meeting of the Retail Butchers' Association of this city Friday night. These advanced prices will go into effect Saturday.

The Forty-Second Regiment.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 19.—A telegram was received Friday night by Congressman Alexander from Secretary of War Root to the effect that one of the new volunteer regiments, the 42d, will be organized and stationed at Fort Porter, in this city.

No Hope for Judge Hilton's Recovery.

SARATOGA, N.Y., Aug. 19.—Judge Hilton at a late hour Friday night was still in a comatose state and believed to be gradually sinking. There is no hope of his recovery.

CAME TOGETHER.

Two Trolley Cars on the Norristown Line Collide.

The Railway is a Single Track Road—It is Said the Motorman Failed to Wait at the Switch for the Arrival of the Other Car.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—A head-on collision between two trolley cars occurred Sunday on the Norristown, Chestnut Hill and Foxborough railway, in Plymouth township, Marion county, a few miles north of this city. Thirty persons were injured. The following are believed to be fatally hurt and in the Charity hospital at Norristown.

John Parson, Philadelphia, internal injuries and several ribs broken.

William Hartstone, West Point, Pa., internal injuries and ribs broken.

M

DREYFUS TRIAL.

Gen. Mercier Says the Prisoner Will Be Condemned.

M. Labori is anxious to return to court even if he has to be carried an ambulance—dissatisfied with M. Demange.

RENNES, Aug. 21.—Gen. Mercier, who was minister of war when Capt. Dreyfus was condemned and who in the present trial is the virtual prosecutor, was called upon Sunday by the correspondent of the Associated Press, who invited him to make a statement of the position of the anti-Dreyfusards.

Although unable to receive the correspondent in person Gen. Mercier sent his oldest son to convey the following expression of his views:

"Gen. Mercier considers it useless to attempt to convert foreign opinion regarding the Dreyfus question, in which, moreover, foreigners have no right to intervene. Foreign people have been misled by their press, which is violently Dreyfusard, for the very good reason that a majority of the foreign newspapers have been bribed by the Jewish syndicate. Gen. Mercier considers anything he might say explaining his position, which is that of a majority of the French people, would be useless. The best reply to Dreyfusard statements abroad will be the condemnation of Dreyfus."

This condemnation is only a matter of ten days or a fortnight, for condemned Dreyfus certainly will be. Foreigners will then see that their journals have deceived them, for they will recognize that the mass of the French nation, who will receive the news of the conviction of Dreyfus as joyful tidings, is composed of officials and that the majority of the French applaud the condemnation. It will be because it is just and merited."

The Associated Press correspondent then called upon Maitre Labori, who lives within 200 yards of Gen. Mercier, the houses of both being guarded by gendarmes and detectives, who sit in chairs in the roadway in front of the houses.

M. Labori was taking the air in the garden. He has been suffering severely from insomnia, and Sunday was feverish and excited. The wound itself has not made the progress the doctors hoped for, although there had been no relapse. In view of this general condition his medical advisers oppose his going to court Monday, as he had desired. They predict that the exertion would so overtax his strength as to compel him to take to his bed, which he would probably not leave, in that event, for a month.

Tuesday or Wednesday, therefore, will more probably see his re-appearance in court. He will be provided with a specially constructed chair that will enable him to conduct the cross-examination at the outset without risking from his seat.

M. Labori is intensely anxious to return to court even if he has to be carried there in an ambulance. He is dissatisfied with M. Demange's conduct of the case thus far, and on his return he intends to have Gen. Mercier and the other generals back on the witness stand. After reading their evidence he is confident of his ability to crush Mercier, and he expects to use the Schneider and Panizzardi telegrams also to confound Mercier.

RENNES, Aug. 21.—The Dreyfus court-martial reconvened Monday morning at the usual hour. Maitre Labori was not present. His doctors considered that it would be inadvisable for him to attempt to take part in Monday's proceedings in view of the danger of a relapse.

The witness was Col. Fabre, who deposed that he had discovered the similarity between the hand writing of the accused and that of the bordereau. He reiterated his conviction of the guilt of Dreyfus, saying: "I am sure he wrote the bordereau."

Looks Like Murder.

RENNES, Aug. 21.—Myron Metcalf, of Willoughby, was found dead at the side of the Cleveland & Painesville suburban car track a short distance west of that place Sunday night. Railroad officials say he was not struck by any of the cars. There were a number of severe bruises on the head and it is generally believed that he met with foul play.

Schooner sinks.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 21.—The four-masted schooner Augustus Palmer, Capt. Haskell, loaded with 2,125 tons of coal from Newport News to Bangor, Me., went ashore Saturday near Thimble light. The sea was running very high, and she immediately sank in four fathoms of water. Capt. Haskell and crew were rescued and brought to Norfolk Sunday afternoon. The Palmer is a total loss.

Asleep on the Track.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 21.—John Van Horn, while under the influence of liquor, laid down on the Nickel Plate railroad track at Argos, using the rail for a pillar, and went sound to sleep. The regular freight train ran over him, crushing his head to a pulp. The engineer of the train said that it was impossible for him to stop, and when he noticed the man he blew the whistle, but Van Horn, being in a drunken stupor, did not awaken. Van Horn was single man and about 22 years of age.

GEN. JIMINEZ ARRESTED.

Just as he was about to sail from Cienfuegos, Capt. Stampfer apprehended him—says it is an outrage.

HAVANA, Aug. 19.—In view of the fact that Col. Bacallao, chief of the secret police, persisted in his declaration that Gen. Juan Isidor Jiminez, the aspirant to the presidency of Santo Domingo, was in Havana, either not having left or having returned the military authorities telegraphed to Cienfuegos instructing Capt. Stampfer, collector of customs there, to ascertain whether Jiminez was on the Menendez steamer and to take him under arrest if that should be the case.

Just as the steamer was about leaving Cienfuegos, Capt. Stampfer located Jiminez and arrested him. Jiminez denounced the arrest as an outrage. He said he had broken no law and would not yield except to force. Capt. Stampfer replied that he was ready to use force if necessary and Jiminez then yielded, remarking that he did not only because he could not help himself.

Senor Frias, mayor of Cienfuegos, refused to make the arrest, claiming that Gen. Jiminez was an old personal friend, whom he had known intimately for years. When Jiminez was taken into custody, Senor Frias was found with police inspector in close conversation with Jiminez and the latter's secretary; it is believed the mayor was urging him to leave the steamer to conceal himself and to wait for a better opportunity. Capt. Stampfer informed Jiminez that he would make him as comfortable as possible, and after Jiminez and his secretary had packed their trunks they were driven, accompanied by the chief of police and Capt. Stampfer, to the Union hotel, where two bedrooms and a diningroom were placed at their disposal.

Gen. Jiminez will be kept under police charge until further advices are received from the governor general. There is much excitement among the people of Cienfuegos over the affair. The sentiment is generally expressed that the authorities had no right to arrest Jiminez, an unarmed citizen, going apparently to Santiago de Cuba, and the point is even made that if he were going to San Domingo, he would only be returning to his native country.

Senor Aybor, a representative of Jiminez, left Cienfuegos for Santiago de Cuba last Tuesday, after remaining at the former place ten days. It is believed he tried to fit out an expedition, as a small schooner was found lying outside the harbor, supposed to be awaiting a cargo of ammunition. Aybor had taken out clearance papers for Key West several days before.

OFF THE BRIDGE.

Portion of a Passenger Train on the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Goes Into Little River.

TEXARKANA, Tex., Aug. 19.—A message has just been received here to the effect that a north-bound passenger train on the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railroad went into Little river, 50 miles north of here. A switch engine, with crew, has left for the scene. The wreck is between stations, and it is not known how much of the train went off the bridge. It is known, however, that the baggage, express and mail cars went in.

The Shamrock at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The Shamrock, the British yacht that is to compete for the American cup, arrived at New York Friday. After the yachts had anchored in the upper bay Capt. Archie Hogarth, of the Shamrock, said: "The Shamrock behaved beautifully. I am more than satisfied with her. In fact, I am delighted, because my most sanguine anticipations have been more than realized. But I will say this, that gleeful as I am with the behavior of the boat, I was more surprised with the generous reception which she got from the time that we were abreast of Sandy Hook."

Glorot Not the Assassin.

RENNES, Aug. 19.—Glorot, who claims to have been the man who attempted to assassinate M. Labori, was brought to Rennes Friday evening. Col. Piequart, M. Gast and others who saw the would-be assassin, declare Glorot was not the man. The prisoner has written a letter to the police making an alleged confession and glorifying in the crime. The doctors say he is insane.

Yellow Jack at Port Limon, Costa Rica.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Surgeon General Wyman was Friday notified by Surgeon Carson, stationed at Port Limon, Costa Rica, of the appearance of one case of yellow fever at that place. This is one of the eight American ports, at which the marine hospital service has an official stationed to report promptly on the appearance of yellow fever. This is the first that has been reported at any of the fruit ports this season.

The Children Safe.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Susan Cutter, living in the outskirts of the city, Friday afternoon attached the family horse to a road wagon, and with her three little children started to drive down town. Within a short distance the horse started on a runaway. Mrs. Cutter was thrown out and fatally hurt internally, besides which she suffered a broken arm. The little children clung to the wagon, and after a long run the horse finally turned homeward, where he arrived safely with the little ones unharmed.

"GOING TO BUY A BUGGY."

A Mortgage Gotten Out of the Way—Typical Story of a Nebraska Farmer's Experience.

A few years ago hard times made the Western farmer deny himself everything save the bare necessities of life. Then came the great crop year of 1897 and with it a story.

A Nebraska farmer carried a mortgage of $4,200 on his property, and it was a burden hard to contend with. The wheat crop in '97 was enormous and prices were high. He appeared at the bank shortly after harvest, pulled out $4,000 and asked for a loan of $200 to enable him to cancel the mortgage note. The banker, who held the note, urged him not to bother about it, but go and buy cattle with his $4,000, feed his corn crop and in that way get the maximum for his product.

"No, sir," replied the farmer, "I want to pay that note now. Then when I harvest the corn crop I'm goin' to pay you back that $200 I just borrowed, and then do you know what I'm going to do?" and his honest face beamed all over with pleasure. "I'm going to buy a buggy!" This little incident tells the story of thousands of others out in Nebraska, and the fact that during the past six months one concern in Chicago shipped to one firm in Omaha alone one hundred and thirty carloads of buggies and carriages, averaging about 22 to the car, makes it very evident that prosperity is with Nebraska. It is a wonderful state with great resources, and the crops of the past few years have put Nebraska farmers in an enviable position.

GETTING A DINNER.

How Two Scheming Rascals Victimized a Stranger on the Paris Boulevard.

The other day a rather amusing scene was witnessed on a Paris boulevard. Two friends of rather excitable temperament perceived quietly sitting at the foot of a table in front of a cafe an enormous dog, with a head, teeth and claws that would have done credit to a lion.

"Well," said one of them, "the owner of that creature need be afraid of nobody with such a protector."

"What, that dog?" said the other. "Why, he wouldn't move a paw."

The dispute grew warm, and the first speaker emphatically declared:

"I bet a dinner that you won't venture to touch its master!"

"Not venture, indeed! You shall soon see!" was the quick rejoinder.

So saying, the latter dealt a box on the ears of a gentleman who was drinking a glass of beer at the table where the dog sat.

The gentleman uttered a loud cry and rushed upon his assailant; the dog remained impulsive. An explanation followed, and the injured gentleman was informed of the wager in question.

"But the dog isn't mine," he howled, in a tremendous passion.

An hour later, however, you might have observed through the windows of a famous restaurant a little distance away three joyful guests sitting before a sumptuously spread table, and discussing the merits of several bottles of old wine. They were the bettors and their victim—Tit-Bits.

Chartreuse.

More than 40 plants enter into the composition of the liqueur, chartreuse. The principal one is balm (melissa officinalis), of which from 250 to 500 grammes are present in 100 litres; hyssop in flower, peppermint, Alpine gentian (artemisia gentiana), the seeds and roots of angelica, of each from 125 to 250 grammes; then, in smaller quantities, varying from 15 to 30 grammes, arnica flowers, thyme, balsamite, the buds of the poplar blossom (populus balsamea), Chinese cinnamon, mace, coriander, aloes, cardamoms, etc. Moreover, each 100 litres contains an alcoholate in which are present, with "majolaine" clove pinks and lavender, four kinds of pepper (long, Jamaica, cubeb and culinary), pine resin, treacle, hyacinth, basil of nutmeg, kneaded together in Malaga wine. A hundred litres of the liqueur contain about 2,500 grammes of this mixture, and the cost of preparation scarcely exceeds eight francs. The quality and age of the alcohol used in the manufacture are the principal feature.

Smallest Capital in Europe.

Cette, the capital of the independent principality of Montenegro, would make poor showing by the side of even the smaller Illinois villages. It consists of two streets and a square. The royal palace, which fronts directly on the street, is not as large as many farm houses, and the royal church, where Montenegrin princes are crowned, seats only 100 people. The rest of the houses in the capital are mainly occupied by members of the diplomatic corps, almost all of the European capitals being represented by ministers who have nothing in the world to do but pass the time as best they may. In winter the capital of Montenegro is even more desolate and forlorn. Snow to the depth of four or five feet often covers the streets and keeps the royal and other residents within doors.—Chicago Tribune.

A WOMAN'S MINUTE.

Hubert Hudson held Gladys Gordon's shapely hand in his as they stood in the doorway. They were on the eve of a separation.

"Good bye," he said, with a sigh. "The time will pass very slowly until I see you again. I shall be very lonely, Gladys."

"What are you saying, Hubert?" she inquired. "I'm just going in to speak to the dressmaker. I'll return in a minute."

"Farewell, lovely deceiver," he repeated, sadly shaking his head.

Hubert had been there before, and knew the length of Gladys' minutes.

VERY REMARKABLE WIFE

"My son," remarked Mrs. Mark Dawn, "is the happy husband of a most remarkable and economical woman."

"He is a very fortunate man, indeed," observed Mrs. Mermet.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Mark Dawn, "their house is beautiful for $29.88—regular $30 rent. The reception hall is lighted by a perfectly lovely lamp which she bought for $2.98, reduced from $3, which stands on a dear little table bought for $3.48, reduced from $3.50. Her lace curtains were a bargain at $4.98, regular price $5. Then they have the sweetest little stove which only cost $7.49, reduced from $7.50. My daughter-in-law is a regular treasure, I think."

"Pray, what was her maiden name?" inquired Mrs. Mermet.

"Oh, yes, I remember her. She was twenty-seven, marked down from thirty-five. They are living in very reduced circumstances, to judge from your conversation."

Fine Figure

Many women lose their girlish forms after they become mothers. This is due to neglect.

The figure can be preserved beyond question if the expectant mother will constantly use during the whole period of pregnancy. The earlier its use is begun, the more perfectly will the shape be preserved.

Mother's Friend not only softens and relaxes the muscles during the great strain before birth, but helps the skin to contract naturally afterward. It keeps unsightly wrinkles away, and the muscles underneath retain their pliability.

Mother's Friend is that famous external liniment which banishes morning sickness and nervousness during pregnancy; shortens labor and makes it nearly painless; builds up the patient's constitutional strength, so that she emerges from the ordeal without danger.

The little one, too, shows the effects of Mother's Friend by its robustness and vigor

ed into as to whom and by what means
Will Clayton, whose dead body we found his death."After having examined said body and heard the evidence, we do find the de-

WAVE PRINTS.

Where ocean-seeking rivers gently glide,
To join the spreading harbor's restless flow.
While flashing gems of living sunlight glow,
And ever onward laughing bubbles rise;
Behold far, far beneath the shifting tide,
Clear ripple-marks the stainless sea sands show.
A record fair, traced daintily below,
Of waves that toss and break and then subside.
So when the fitful waves of fortune break
Upon the bosom of life's restless sea,
A cloud drift melts to blue without a sign,
Deep written on the heart's pure scroll they make
A record plain, whose lights and shades decree,
Self's chilling fate, or love's warm glow divine.

We sat in silence for some minutes, each absorbed in his own thoughts. The heat from the fire had warmed the hut so that the blue steams began to rise from my damp clothes. My companion reclined on his elbow, tracing some diagram on the floor with a point, which from its shape was evidently of eastern make. The rain, which now increased in violence, had almost quenched the log fire, and was invading our shelter, for the roof began to leak. There being no wind the torch burned steadily, throwing sufficient light for us to distinguish each other. I began to wonder what manner of man this was before me, dressed in a motley of court fool and peasant, and my curiosity was aroused to such an extent that for the time I forgot my own troubles. Nevertheless I made no sign of inquiry, knowing there is no means so sure of obtaining information as to seem not to desire it. My new friend kept his eyes fixed on the point of his dagger, the muscles of his queer webbed face twitching nervously. At length he became conscious of my scrutiny, for, lifting his eyes, he looked me in the face, and then made a motion of his hand toward the wine skin.

"No more, thanks."

"There will be that left for to-morrow before we start."

"Then you also are a traveler?"

"You say you are going to Bucine?" He asked the question in his usual abrupt manner; but his tone was composed.

"It lies on my road."

"And on mine, too. Shall we travel together? I could point out the way."

"Certainly. It is very good of you."

"Well, it is time to sleep, and the torch has burnt to an end."

As he spoke he stretched himself out at full length, and, turning his back to me, appeared to sink into slumber. I watched him for some time by the embers of the torch, wondering if I was wise in accepting his companionship, and then, overpowered by fatigue, lost myself in sleep, heedless of the rain, which dripped in twenty places through the roof.

I slept profoundly until aroused by my shoulder being gently shaken, and, looking up, beheld my host, as I must call him, bending over me. I thought I had slept for a few minutes only, and said to my surprise that it was well in the morning, and the sun shone brightly. All traces of cloud were gone, though soft billows of mist rolled over the olive gardens, and vineyards of Chianti grape, that stretched towards Montevarchi.

"Heavens, man! How you slept! I was right when I hinted you had a good conscience."

I scrambled up with a hasty "Good-morning," and, a few minutes afterwards, having finished the remains of the wine in the skin, we started off in the direction of Bucine. My companion had politely never inquired my name, and I had been equally reticent. He placed on his head a silken fool's cap, and the bells on it jingled incessantly as he walked along with a jaunty air, at a pace that was remarkable for a man of his age. He seemed to have lost the melancholy that possessed him during the night, and conversed in so cheerful and entertaining a manner that in spite of myself I was interested and withdrawn from my unhappy thoughts. He kept up his mood to Bucine, where, notwithstanding our strange appearance, we attracted, to my relief, less attention than I imagined we should draw.

With appetites sharpened by our walk, we did full justice to the meal I ordered at the only hotel in the place. Here I played host, as a return for my entertainment, and in conversation my acquaintance said that he was bound for Florence. I told him that also was my point, and invited him to bear me company on the road, to which he willingly agreed. I made an attempt here to hire a horse; but not even a donkey was procurable, all available carriage having been seized upon for the army. So once more descending the hill on which Bucine is situated, we forded the river and continued our journey.

At the albergo we heard that a body of troops were foraging along the banks of the Arno, and resolved to make a detour, and crossing Monte Luco, to keep on the sides of the Chianti hills, if necessary avoiding Montevarchi altogether. My companion maintained his high spirits until we reached the top of the spur of Monte Luco, known to the peasantry as the Virgin's Cradle. Here we stopped to breathe and observe the view. I looked back across the Chiana valley, and let my eye run over the landscape which stretched as far as the Marches. In the blue splash to the south of the rugged and conical hill of Cortona, I recognized Trasimene, and beyond it lay Perugia. I turned to call my friend's attention to the scene, and at first did not perceive where he was. Another glance showed him standing on the edge of the cliff, a little to my left, shaking his clenched hand in the direction of Perugia, whilst on his face was marked every sign of sorrow and hate.

Curious to see what this would result in, I made no attempt to attract his attention, but in a moment he shook off the influence which possessed him, and rejoined me with a calm brow. We thereupon continued our journey with this difference, that my companion was now as silent as hitherto he had been cheerful. My own dark thoughts too came back to roost, and in a gloom we descended the Cradle, pushing our way through the myrtle with which it was covered, and walked on, holding Montevarchi to our right.

We kept a sharp lookout for the foragers, and, seeing no signs of them, made up our minds, after some consultation, to risk going to Montevarchi, which we reached without mishap a little after noon. It was not my intention to halt there more than an hour or so, which I, hoping that I would have better luck than at Bucine, intended to spend in trying to hire an animal of some kind to ride.

We stopped at the Bell inn, near the gate, and, after a deal of bargaining, which consumed a good hour, the landlord agreed to hire me his mule for two crowns. The rascal wanted ten at first. Just as the matter was settled a dozen or so of troopers rode in, and, spying the mule, in the twinkling of an eye, claimed it for carriage purposes.

It was in vain that the landlord protested that it was his last beast, that it had been hired to the noble cavalier, meaning me, and many other things beside. The soldiers were deaf to his entreaties, and, although I had more than a mind to draw on the villains, I had the good sense to restrain myself, for the odds were too many against me. I therefore hid my chagrin under a smile, and the mule was led away amidst the lamentations of mine host, who was further put out of pocket by a gallon or so of wine, which the troopers consumed, doubtless in honor of the prize they had taken, neglecting in the true fashion of the compagnies grandes to pay for it. It was a fit lesson to the landlord, for had he not, in his capacity, bagged for an hour over the hire of the animal, he might have been richer by two crowns and still owned his mule. Thus it is that avarice finds its own punishment.

On going off, the leader of the troop, a man whom I knew by sight and by reputation as a swashbuckler, if ever there was one, made me a mock salute, saying, in allusion to my quietness in surrendering my claim to the mule: "Adieu, Messer Feather-Cap—may your courage grow as long as your sword." This taunt I swallowed ruefully, and immediately set about my departure. My companion, who was not mixed up in the altercation, joined me silently, and we followed in the direction taken by the troopers, pursued by the maledictions of the impudent, who vented his spleen on us as the posse, and the rabble who but a moment before were cheering me.

More than once I felt inclined to turn and the matter for myself; but the fact that this might mean laying aside all chance of settling D'Entragues urged me to my best efforts. Some fool made an attempt to stop me, and I was compelled to slash him across the face with my sword, as a warning not to interfere with matters with which he had no concern. I hardly knew where I was going; but dashed down a little by-street, and was, after a hundred yards, brought to a halt by a dead wall. I could barely reach the top of it with my bare hands, but luckily this was enough to all me to draw myself up, and drop over to the other side just as the police reached within ten feet of me. I did not stop to take note of their action, but was off as soon as my feet touched the ground, and found to my joy that I was close to one of the unrepainted breaches in the city wall, made six months ago by Tremouille's cannon. Through this I rushed, and, scrambling down a slope of broken stone and mortar, found I would be compelled to climb down very nearly a hundred feet of what looked like the face of a rock, before I could reach level ground. There was not even a goat track. My agility was, however, spurred on by hearing shouts behind me, and preferring to risk death in attempting the descent rather than fall into the hands of messer the Podesta, I clambered the venture, and, partly by holding on to the tough broom roots, partly slipping, and aided by Providence and Our Lady of San Spirito, to whom I hurriedly cast up a prayer, I managed to reach the bottom, and fell, exhausted and breathless, into a cistern hedge.

I was too beaten to go another yard, and had my pursuers only followed up, must have become an easy prey. As it was I heard them reach the breach, where they came to a stop, all shouting and babbling at the same time. One or two, bolder than the others, attempted to descend the ledge of rock, down which I escaped, but its steepness damped their courage. They, however, succeeded in loosening some of the debris so that it fell over the cliff, and a few of the stones dropped very close to me; but by good hap I escaped, or else this never would have been written. One great block, indeed, just passed over my head, and I vowed an altar-piece to Our Lady of San Spirito, who alone could have diverted that which was coming straight to my destruction; and I may add I duly kept my word. After a time the voices above began to grow fainter, and to my delight I found that the citizens, thinking it impossible I should have escaped like a lizard amongst the rocks, were harking back, and ranging to the right and left. I waited until all sound died away, and cautiously peeped out. The coast was clear. I had recovered my wind, and, without more waste of time, I rose and pressed on in the direction of the hills, determined to chance no further adventures near the towns. Indeed, I had crowded more incident into the past few hours than into the previous five-and-thirty years of my life, and my sole object, at present, was to reach Florence without further let or hindrance.

The troopers halted—discipline it will be observed was not great—and one of them with rough sympathy called to my friend to bear the girl, for so she looked, to the fountain, at the same time that their commander gave a loud order to go on, and to leave off looking at a fool and a beggar. I had, however, made up my mind that there was a little work for me, and, drawing my sword, stepped up to the swashbuckler's bridle, and asked for a five-minutes' interview there and then.

He burst into a loud laugh. "Corpo di Bacco! Here is Messer Feather-Cap with his courage grown. Here, two of you bind him to the mule."

But the men with him were in no mood to obey, and one of them openly said: "It is always thus with the ancient Briceo."

"Do you intend to give me the pleasure I seek?" I asked, "or has the ancient Briceo taken off his heart with his corslet?"

For a moment it looked as if he were about to ride at me; but my sword was ready, and I was standing too close to him for any such treachery to be carried off. Flinging the reins, therefore, to the neck of his horse, he dismounted slowly and drew his sword. A number of the townsfolk, attracted by the scene, so far forgot their fear of the foragers as to collect around us, and in a few moments a ring was formed, one portion of which was occupied by the troopers.

Briceo took his stand so as to place the sun in my eyes, a manifest unfairness, for we should have fought north and south; yet I made no objection, and, clasping my cloak let it fall to the ground behind me.

"A'vous!" he called out, and the next moment we engaged in the lower circle, my opponent, for all his French cry, adopting the Italian method, and using a dagger to parry. For a few seconds we tried to feel each other, and I was delighted with the balance of my sword. It did not take me half a minute to see that he was a child in my hands, and I began to rapidly consider whether it would be worth the candle to kill him or not. Briceo, who had commenced the assault with a stamp of his foot and a succession of rapid thrusts in the lower lines, became aware of his weakness as soon as I did, and began to back slowly. I twice pricked him over the heart, and his hand began to shake so that he could hardly hold his weapon.

"Make way there," I called out, mocking him, the ancient wench to run a little." Maddened by this taunt, he pulled himself together and lunged recklessly at me in tierce; it was an easy parry, and with a strong beat I disarmed him. He did not wait, but with the rapidity of a hare turned and fled, not so fast, however, but that I was able to accelerate his departure with a stroke from the flat of my sword.

"Adieu, ancient Briceo!" I called out after him as he ran on, followed by a howl of derision from the crowd, in which his own men joined.

It was lucky that I adopted the course of disarming him, for had the affair ended otherwise, I doubt not that the men-at-arms would have felt called upon to avenge their leader, poltroon as he was. As it happened they enjoyed his discomfiture, and an old trooper called out to me:

"Well fought, signore—you should join us—there is room for your sword under the banner of Tremouille. What—no? I am sorry; but go in peace, for you have rid us of a cur."

Saying this, he rode off, one of their number leading the ancient's horse by the bridle. I turned now to look for my companion. He was nowhere to be seen, and on inquiry I found that he had lifted the girl up, and, supporting her on his arm, the two, followed by the dog, had turned down by the church, and were not in view. It would, no doubt, have been easy to follow, and as easy to trace them; but I reasoned that the man must have purposely done this to avoid me; and after all it was no business of mine. I therefore returned my sword to its sheath and walked on, holding Montevarchi to our right.

We kept a sharp lookout for the foragers, and, seeing no signs of them, made up our minds, after some consultation, to risk going to Montevarchi, which we reached without mishap a little after noon. It was not my

CHAPTER V.

D'ENTRANGES SCORES A POINT.

Before I had gone fifty paces, however, I became aware that there was some law left in Montevarchi, for a warning cry made me look over my shoulder, and I saw a party of the city guards, who had discreetly kept out of the way when Briceo and I crossed swords, hurrying towards me. The same glance, showed me that the ancient was already near their hands, and was being dragged along with but little regard to his comfort; and I felt sure that now, as the troop was gone, the citizens would wreak their vengeance on this hen-roost robber, and he would be lucky if he escaped with life. As for me, the catchpols being out, they do not reason that they might as well net me. To stop and resist would only result in my being ultimately overpowered, and perhaps imprisoned; to yield without a blow meant very much the same thing, and, in the shake of a drake's tail, I resolved to run, and to trust for escape to my turn for speed. So I set off at my roundest pace, followed by the posse, and the rabble who but a moment before were cheering me.

More than once I felt inclined to turn and the matter for myself; but the fact that this might mean laying aside all chance of settling D'Entranges urged me to my best efforts. Through this I rushed, and, scrambling down a slope of broken stone and mortar, found I would be compelled to climb down very nearly a hundred feet of what looked like the face of a rock, before I could reach level ground. There was not even a goat track. My agility was, however, spurred on by hearing shouts behind me, and preferring to risk death in attempting the descent rather than fall into the hands of messer the Podesta, I clambered the venture, and, partly by holding on to the tough broom roots, partly slipping, and aided by Providence and Our Lady of San Spirito, to whom I hurriedly cast up a prayer, I managed to reach the bottom, and fell, exhausted and breathless, into a cistern hedge.

More than once I felt inclined to turn and the matter for myself; but the fact that this might mean laying aside all chance of settling D'Entranges urged me to my best efforts. Some fool made an attempt to stop me, and I was compelled to slash him across the face with my sword, as a warning not to interfere with matters with which he had no concern. I hardly knew where I was going; but dashed down a little by-street, and

HEART-BREAKING, INDEED.

A willin' robin's better than a sulky nightingale.

She (triumphant)—Some of the greatest women of the world, Harriet Martineau, Florence Nightingale, the Cary Sisters, Helen Gould, Harriet Hosmer and others, never married. What you think of that?

He—I think it not unlikely that a woman who wishes to become famous will succeed better without a husband than with one. If you have that ambition, I will—er—release—

She (hastily)—Oh, no, indeed! I—I hate fame.—N. Y. Weekly.

Why Did He Sigh?

Briggs—That was a funny case down there in Massachusetts, where the usher at the other fellow's wedding ran away with the bride before she could reach the church.

Enpeck (sighing)—They didn't have any ushers of that kind when I was married.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sui Generis.

Ethel (excitedly)—Oh, papa, hurry quick! Mr. Sappy is lying on the parlor sofa in great pain. He swallowed his monocle!

Papa (coolly)—Well, can't it be duplicated?

Ethel—Oh, yes; but Mr. Sappy can't! —N. Y. World.

Must Be Beneficial.

It makes my blood boil!" he exclaimed.

"That's good," she replied.

"Good!" he cried.

"Certainly," she answered. "Boiling is recommended to remove impurities in all liquids."—Chicago Post.

Almost Miraculous.

She—Colonel, what was the narrowest escape you ever had?

He—It happened only a few nights ago. I was at a wedding and ate both chicken salad and ice cream without being poisoned.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Sauce of Regret.

She used to be a peach, 'tis said, Her figure plump with charming curves; But, now that she is growing old, She's been consigned to the preserves.—Puck.

JUST LIKE A DOUGHNUT.

Before and After.

"My dear," said Mrs. Hunewell, as she poured the coffee at breakfast the other morning, "do you believe in the eternal fitness of things?"

"I used to," replied Hunewell, "but that was before you began to make my shirts."—Chicago Daily News.

Profit for the Druggist.

Mrs. Richmond—I always hate to go into a drug store and ask to see the directory and then walk out without buying anything.

Mrs. Bronxborough—Oh, I never do that. I always buy a postage stamp or something.—N. Y. Journal.

An Extra Ingredient.

"No, he said, reflectively, "this isn't like mother's pie."

"And why not?" she waspishly asked. "Because," he mildly explained, "mother's pie always had ants in it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Only Wanted Sarah.

Stern Parent (to a young applicant for his daughter's hand)—Young man, can you support a family?

Young Man (meekly)—I only wanted Sarah.—Tit-Bits.

'Tis Better So.

Harry—Why did you postpone your marriage?

Jack—My fiancee has just graduated from a cooking school, and I want to give her time to forget what she has learned.—N. Y. Journal.

Hard Man to Manage.

Jorkins—Mrs. Jasper bosses her husband in everything, and yet they say she is not satisfied.

Perkins—No; she complains that she is overworked.—Town Topics.

PICTURED HORSES.

Artists' Conceptions of the Noble Steed of the Present Are Not Always Natural

The artists' horse of to-day is an altogether different creature from the artists' horse of a century ago. In years gone by his neck was arched, his rump well rounded and his whole bearing pompous and melodramatic. Frequently in the good old days he raised one foreleg like a setter dog or reared on both hind legs after the fashion of a grizzly bear. But things have changed now, and the pictorial, or marble, steed has altered his quondam poses for brisker and more businesslike attitudes. While the modern metamorphosis may lack the heroic features which formerly characterized our good old friend, we believe the artistic horse of the present day is much more accurate. They say the change is due almost entirely to the revelations of the instantaneous camera. This infallible portrait maker has caught the steed in action and shown us exactly how he looks. It has always shown us that when he runs he doubles up like a jackknife and throws grace to the winds. It has likewise demonstrated the fact that old-time artists had erroneous ideas as to how the brute handled his feet and used his legs. Indeed, photography has shown us so many things about moving horses that strict accuracy in their portraiture is almost ridiculous.

The approaches to all the cemeteries about New York are lined with stone yards, where headpieces may be had on short notice and in a great variety of styles to suit the varying tastes and degrees of grief or sentiment on the part of the survivors. Tombstones are such cumbersome and heavy ware that they are displayed at the very gates of the graveyards for convenience in making prompt deliveries. The demand for them is reasonably steady, and it would not strike the casual observer that there was much stimulation to an eager competition in the business of supplying them.

It is the more surprising, therefore, says the New York Sun, to come across a job lot of headstones at bargain prices. Out in an eastern suburb of the city on Long Island a wheeling tourist came upon an odd spectacle of a mark-down sale of tombstones the other day. All goods were marked in plain figures in the regular and much approved manner of the great department stores. The prices were attractive and the manner of their exhibition was enough to tempt one to lay in a supply against the time when in the course of nature he might need something in this line.

Lettered in white paint were all styles, shapes and sizes in granite monuments—plain, polished and ornate. "This style, $20;" "Very fine at $48;" "A beauty, only $14.50," and "Reduced to $30," were some of the legends. The stonemason stood, like a floorwalker, among his wares, wearing an inviting smile, while a rival dealer across the way looked on with scorn all over his grimy face at the advanced business methods of his neighbor.

SAVING SILVER AT THE MINT.

Iron Tools Eaten Away by Acid to Preserve Their Precious Coating.

Perhaps the most interesting scheme for the recovery of waste silver at the mint is that applied to the utensils of the melting gang, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The big iron stirring rods, the dippers, the strainers and the ladles that come in contact with the molten metal are laid aside at intervals and sent downstairs. They are covered with what looks like brown rust, but is really oxidized silver.

Suppose, to digress a moment, one desired to get a coat of paint off the outside of a house. In such an event the plan of scraping away the house and leaving the shell of paint standing would be regarded as somewhat eccentric, yet that is substantially the method adopted at the mint.

The implements are placed in baths of sulphuric acid, which attacks the iron or steel, but leaves the silver untouched.

They are very curious, these fragile casts. Their surface is a sort of natural filigree, honeycombed with innumerable fantastic perforations. The reproduction of a bolt or screw is often times as perfect as an electrolyte, but they are hurried remorselessly back to the crucible and thus pursue their cycle until at last they find their Karma in a melted coin.

On Paul's Modesty.

President Kruger recently refused an interview to celebrated Englishman, who thereupon sent back word that he must see him, that he was no ordinary person, that, in fact, he was a member of the house of lords. The servant went away and returned with the message: "The president says he cannot see you, and adds that he is a cattle herder."

Penny Postage Success.

As a result of the penny postage scheme between the British colonies it has become necessary to extend the facilities of the general post office in London. The volume of Canadian business alone has doubled since the first of the year.

SUMMER COMMENTS

Regarding Theatrical Folk and Other People Talked About.

Half a dozen Harrodsburg girls have formed an anti-gossip society. A small fine will be imposed on members guilty of gossiping. Similar societies in every town would be a good thing.

Lewis Morrison expects to start on a two years' tour around the world next June. His repertoire will include "Faust," "The Merchant of Venice," "The Master of Ceremonies," "Richelieu," and "Frederic the Great." He will carry a company of twenty-two people.

One of the chief features of the Pan-American exposition to be held in Buffalo in 1901 will be a gigantic representation of a Buffalo. The head will rise 200 feet in the air and the prospective builder would place a restaurant in it. The body of the animal is to contain a vaudeville theatre to seat 2,000 people.

Lillian Lewis, the noted actress, who died last week in Minnesota, was born in Midway, Ky., and began her stage career in 1882. She appeared in "As in a Looking Glass" in this city about twelve years ago, and has played in nearly every city in the United States. She was the wife of Lawrence Marston, and collaborated with him in writing several plays.

Miss Julia Dent Grant, grand-daughter of Gen. Grant, who is to wed Prince Cantacuzine, of Russia, has received two offers of marriage from Prince since her debut. Count of Turin, third in succession to the throne of Italy, offered to renounce his claim to the throne for Miss Grant, but she refused to permit the sacrifice. The marriage will occur on September 15th at All Saints Chapel in Newport, R. I. Mrs. Potter Palmer, aunt of the bride, will give her a dowry of $500,000. The wedding trousseau is being made in Paris.

"He Sized Them Up."
"He was 6 years old and engaged in chemical experiments," says the Hartford Courant in speaking of President Hadley of Yale.

"Lacking an ingredient, he appealed to the heads of the household. 'Mother, have we any carbonate of soda in the house?' 'I don't know' (indifferently). 'Father, have we any carbonate of soda?' 'I don't know, my son' (still more indifferently).

"The young philosopher pondered the replies and then gave judgment. 'I know the reason why neither my father nor my mother can tell whether there is any carbonate of soda in the house. Mother does not know what carbonate of soda is, and father does not know what is in the closet.'

From a Masculine Standpoint.
"It's queer," said the young widow, "that poor, dear John never said a word to me about remarrying. I really can't understand it."

"I don't see anything so very remarkable about that," rejoined her bachelor uncle. "I suppose you are not the one he thought it was his duty to warn."—Chicago News.
